

Qualitative Expertise at Southampton (QUEST)

Seminar discussion series 2014/15

The QUEST series of seminar discussions brings together expert practitioners of qualitative methods based within and outside of the University of Southampton, to discuss and explore methodological approaches. Experienced and new researchers from within and outside of the University are welcome. QUEST promotes the development, application and teaching of qualitative methods.

The seminars are led by two speakers presenting and discussing the different or variant ways in which they use a methodological approach, and its affordances, advantages and disadvantages. The format will be presentations, responses and general discussion.

Using Digital Qualitative Methods, Wed. 14 January 2014, 1.00-3.00 pm

Room 1039, Building 2, University of Southampton

Speakers: Maggi Savin-Baden (Professor of Higher Education Research, Coventry University) and Lisa Sigiura (Teaching Fellow in Criminology, Southampton)

Undertaking Community Collaborative Research, Wed. 18 March 2015, 1.00-3.00 pm

Room 1039, Building 2, University of Southampton

Speakers: Ann Fudge Schormans (Associate Professor of Social Work, McMaster University, Canada) and Andrew Power (Lecturer in Human Geography, Southampton)

Documentary and Archival Research, Wed. 17 June 2015, 1.00-3.00 pm

Room 1039, Building 2, University of Southampton

Speakers: Anne-Marie Kramer (Lecturer in Sociology and Social Policy, University of Nottingham) and Christer Petley (Senior Lecturer in History, Southampton)

The presentations will be recorded and posted up on the QUEST website <https://www.quest.soton.ac.uk/training/>

Registration: The seminars start with lunch and attendance is free. If you would like to attend, please book your free ticket in <http://ncrm.eventbrite.co.uk/>

Seminars sponsored by the National Centre for Research Methods